GLOBAL EXPERTS. LOCAL LEARNING.

The American College of Cardiology's Leadership Development Program offers a half-day intensive live course that addresses various skills and knowledge in cardiovascular leadership. The program design provides you with a broad understanding of leadership styles and skills. This program addresses diverse perspectives on critical leadership challenges while also providing an awareness of concepts and techniques relevant to leading effectively within one's own healthcare institution. The ACC often draws upon those who complete this program for future leadership roles within the College.
